B. Background

Cross-border areas in the Horn of Africa (HoA) is home to some of the most vulnerable populations in the region and are therefore critical in the regional resilience agenda. There are a number of national resilience building interventions that require regional approach. Cross-border programming for policy and investment is gaining momentum, following years of piloting and advocacy by various actors in the HoA. Programming at cross-border level is imperative if adverse effects of policy, investment decisions and actions are to be avoided including problems of overgrazing, transmission of transboundary animal diseases and resource use conflicts.

IGAD-FAO Partnership Programme (PP) is formulated in support of IGAD Drought Disaster Resilience and Sustainability Initiative (IDDRSI) with a focus to implement cross-border actions in close collaboration with respective communities and national authorities, and has been in operation since 2016.

The programme is designed by IGAD and FAO to bring communities at the centre of cross-border policy and investment discourse and actions, not only as beneficiaries, but as key stakeholders defining the agenda of their future. It seeks to enhance the resilience of communities in selected cross-border areas coupled with the strengthening of IGAD's capacity (particularly the specialized institutions) to effectively lead and facilitate interaction among its member states on policy and investments, thereby fostering the delivery of cross-border resilience. The project components are (1) Cross-border community investments; (2) Strengthened policy and institutional framework; (3) Evidence-based analysis for informed investments; and (4) Strengthened IGAD specialized institutions.

Overall, the video documentary is expected to:

1. Highlight how the IGAD-FAO PP activities have impacted the lives of the people living in the project areas.
2. Showcase the processes that led to successful implementation and benefits to the communities (approaches used).
3. Propose areas that need additional investment, in either through policy or programming action or both.
